The screenshot shows the Informaworld website interface. The search bar contains the text 'forensic medicine' and the 'GO' button is circled in red. A callout box with a black border and white background points to the 'GO' button, containing the text: 'Anahtar kelimenizi yazınız ve "GO" butonuna basınız.'

The website header includes the Informaworld logo and navigation tabs: Home, eBooks, Journals, Reference works, Abstracts, and Databases. Below the search bar, there are radio buttons for 'entire site', 'publications', 'authors', and 'abstracts'. The 'GO' button is located to the right of the search bar.

The main content area is divided into three columns: 'For Everyone', 'For Readers', and 'For Librarians'. The 'For Everyone' column lists resources like 'Use our Authors' Resources' and 'Read our Authors' Newsletter'. The 'For Readers' column lists 'Set up Alerts', 'Bookmark your Content', 'Save Your Searches', and 'Register Now'. The 'For Librarians' column lists 'Your Subscriptions', 'COUNTER Usage Reports', 'Your Account Features', and 'Register Now'.

Below these columns, there is a section titled 'Browse resources in the following subject areas:' with a list of subjects including Agriculture & Environmental Sciences, Allied Health, Anthropology - Soc Sci, Interdisciplinary Studies, Arts, Behavioral Sciences, Bioscience, Built Environment, Chemistry, Communication Studies, Computer Science, Cultural Studies, History, Law, Language & Literature, Mathematics & Statistics, Media & Film Studies, Medicine, Military & Strategic Studies, Nursing, Pharmaceutical Science, Philosophy, Physics, and Politics & International Relations.

On the right side, there is a 'Got a Voucher?' section with a key icon and a link to claim access. Below that is a Taylor & Francis advertisement, stating they were founded in 1798 and publish over 900 peer-reviewed research journals. At the bottom right, there is a Routledge advertisement, stating they are a distinguished publisher.

The browser's address bar shows the URL 'http://www.informaworld.com/smpp/home~db=all'. The taskbar at the bottom shows the Windows Start button, several open applications including PuTTY, Gazi Üniversitesi Merkez..., Microsoft PowerPoint, and Informaworld - Windo..., and the system clock showing 12:48 on 15.07.2010.

The screenshot shows a Windows Internet Explorer browser window displaying the abstract page of a research article. The article title is "Road traffic mortality in Estonia: Alcohol as the main contributing factor". The authors listed are Taie Kaasik<sup>a</sup>, Marika Väli<sup>b</sup>, and Indrek Saar<sup>c</sup>. The affiliations are: <sup>a</sup> Department of Public Health, <sup>b</sup> Department of Pathological Anatomy and Forensic Medicine, University of Tartu, Tartu, Estonia, and <sup>c</sup> Public Service Academy of Estonia, Tallinn, Estonia. The DOI is 10.1080/17457300701440626. The article was published in the International Journal of Injury Control and Safety Promotion, Volume 14, Issue 3, September 2007, pages 163-170. The subjects are Health & Safety; Health Promotion; Occupational/Industrial Health & Safety; Public Health - Medical Sociology; Rehabilitation Medicine. The formats available are HTML (English) and PDF (English). The user has access to the article. The abstract text states: "Traffic fatalities are the leading cause of death among the young and middle-aged population in Estonia. The objective of this study was to reveal the pattern of traffic fatalities among the population aged 15 - 64 years and to determine the role of alcohol in their fatalities. The data were collected from post-mortem reports at the Estonian Bureau of Forensic Medicine from 2000 to 2002. Alcohol-related deaths were those with a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) equal or above 0.05 g/100 ml. Out of 512 victims, 401 were males and 111 were females. The greatest group were car occupants (58%) followed by pedestrians (31%). The portion of alcohol-related deaths was 70% among men and 44% among women. The mean BAC and percentage of alcohol-related deaths was significantly higher in pedestrian than in driver fatalities. Alcohol intoxication was identified as the most powerful contributing factor to traffic fatalities. The results provide".

The browser window also shows the Taylor & Francis logo and a search bar. The taskbar at the bottom includes the Start button, a clock showing 13:06, and several open applications: PuTTY, Gazi Üniversitesi Merkez..., Microsoft PowerPoint, and the current article page.

The journal description states: "Addiction Abstracts is a quarterly journal published in simultaneous print and online editions. This unique resource and reference tool is published in collaboration with the National Addiction Centre and Taylor & Francis, the leading international publisher in addiction sciences. Addiction Abstracts is edited by Professor Michael Gossop, supported by a panel of eminent researchers. Addiction Abstracts is a focused, unbiased international abstracting service, spanning all addictive substances as well as other compulsive behaviours. Because of the changing frames of reference in modern scientific research and application, Addiction Abstracts is an invaluable and rich source of information for any professional needing the most up-to-date literature in psychology, psychiatry, public health medicine, health behaviour, treatment and prevention. In each printed edition of Addiction Abstracts, you will find a selection of over 250 abstracts from..."
